FITNESS FOR ALL

World Class Athlete Offers New Apps

It's not often, if ever, that you get to meet a world class athlete much less train with him. I recently had the honor of doing both. Coach Rob Powell is that individual.

It so happens that Coach Powell is in our community for a brief time and is offering personal fitness training at the China Spring Fitness Center. For a very reasonable fee, you can train with one of the most prolific athletes of our time.

Rob Powell has accomplished more in his life than you can imagine and the list is far too long to cover it all in this article, but I would like to touch on a few of his amazing feats.

When you first meet Coach Powell, he puts you at ease right away. His friendly, humble demeanor emanates a positive and engaging presence that makes you feel like you have known him for many years. Given his amazing endeavors and success, it would be very easy to be different, but that's just not Coach Powell.

Rob Powell is a 4-Time World Fitness Champion(WFC)/Guinness World Record Holder and 4-Time World Fitness/Conditioning Champion. He is a martial arts expert teaching Mixed Martial Arts, to other Fighters, Military and Police personnel. He has also trained athletes from age 12 up to the Pros, in many sports. But, the unique thing about his training is that it is safe and effective for older adults that want to stay in shape. His workout program has been labeled the best in history by all the experts. Very impressive to say the least.

Now, Coach Powell is bringing all of his training expertise to the masses through "apps". If you are friends with technology then you know about the vast array of apps that are available today. Rob Powell has developed four apps that take you through his world class training process for only .99¢ each. Yes, you too can train with Coach Powell for less than $4.

To tap into this tremendous offer and opportunity, simply search "WFC" on your smart phone or tablet app store. All four apps are needed and work together for ultimate fitness.

Now, you say this sounds like other workout offers and you may have even tried some of them. Well, truth is, most of them got their training techniques from, you guessed it, Rob Powell. The secret to Coach Powell's fitness workout is that any one can do it and it is physically safe for all ages.

This is not some yelling and screaming push yourself to the point you can't comb your own hair kind of training. This is effective, progressive, professional fitness training that you can do at your pace. Coach Powell had me do some of the workout and to my surprise, I could do it and I actually felt good about doing it. It was easy, simple and fun. I didn't expect that.

If you check out the ad on page three of this issue, you will see that Coach Powell is here in China Spring offering personal training. He considers this area to be his home and loves it here. If you are a young athlete preparing to enter Jr. High or High School athletics, or a senior about to enter college athletics, Coach Powell has a program for you. If you are like me and just want to tone up a bit, his training approach will make you feel good about working out.

Coach Powell has many accomplishments, one of which is training dogs. The commands are in two languages but when he trains humans, he speaks only one. A positive one.

You can follow Coach Powell on Twitter @RobPowellWFC, or Facebook, and see more on The WFC Website at www.worldfitnesschampion.net. ★

MCC Weekend Classes

Attending college during traditional course times can be challenging for students who have full-time jobs, families or other obligations during the day. Knowing that even busy people should have the opportunity to get a college education, administrators at McLennan Community College have added a new Weekend College that will begin in the fall 2012 semester.

"This new option is great for those who work during the week and don't want to take evening classes or solely online courses," said Dr. Fred Hills, MCC's dean of arts and sciences. "The Weekend College allows more flexibility in their schedules."

Students in the Weekend College would take classes over the course of a year to complete either an associate degree in business or the core curriculum, which is a set of courses designed to transfer to state universities to apply toward a bachelor's degree.

"These students will benefit from smaller classes and more attention from faculty, along with more focused learning since information will be condensed into two days," Hills said.

The Weekend College includes 15 credit hours in both the fall and spring semesters and 12 hours in the summer terms. That translates to five courses in the fall and four in both the spring and summer terms. Three courses each semester will meet every other Saturday and Sunday, and students can choose to take the remaining classes online or on Fridays.

Weekend courses won't be limited to only students who plan to do the Weekend College. Individuals may register for as many or as few weekend courses as they like, and the courses will also be open to current students who may want to add to their schedules. However, if students want to complete the core or a business degree in one year, they would have to enroll in all the weekend courses offered.

Among the many potential students who could take advantage of this course format include working adults, students who don't prefer a traditional schedule, and high school students seeking dual credit or early admission.

MCC will have additional departments open on the weekends to allow Weekend College access to resources like tutoring, food service, library services, computer labs, the bookstore, counseling and advisors.

Hill notes that along with these benefits, students will also enjoy a less crowded campus, easier parking and a better commute.

"And with the rise in gas prices, it's much more appealing to come to campus twice every two weeks instead of four times once a week."

Enterprise Subscriptions

First, we at The Enterprise would like to thank all of our subscribers. We appreciate the business and your support keeps the paper going.

If you have been reading the paper, you know that last year was particularly difficult. My father was very ill and I had a change in my personal life as well. With all of that, we fell behind on subscription billing.

In the next few days you will be receiving an invoice for renewals, thanks to the help of an accountant. Renewals are based on your original expiration which is the date that will appear by your name in the "Bill To:" box on the invoice. We hope that you will chose to continue your subscription before our price increase coming very soon. Thank you! ★
